

~~ABSTRACT~~

An object of the present invention is to previously subject a substrate such as a wafer to predetermined processing to prevent a hard mask or the like 5 from peeling off during polishing processing performed later. In the present invention, a sloped part such that its film thickness becomes thinner toward an outer peripheral part and an end part of the substrate on which a film is formed is formed.